Freund a Good Sprinter.

Kreitseck, of Company D, is a "ring-er" for Walter Doim, the great half-miler in build, and Jimmle Connors, the regimental trainer, hopes to make a two-minute man out of him some day. Kreitseck's one fault at present is poor judgment in running his races, but a little experience will soon work this out. Billy Freund is one of the regiment's best long distance sprinters. He can hustle any of the junior indoor runners at 300 yards, and would go yards faster if he would only train for it. Company C has a filer in George Rafter, who can spin right along for any distance up to and including the half mile. Rafter's running was largely responsible for the Tweifth's victory over the other regiments in the M. A. L. relay at the Seventy-first Regiment meet.

Andy McDonough, the Fordham Col-L. relay at the Seventy-first Regiment meet.

Andy McDonough, the Fordham College Sprinter, is rated as one of the Twelfth's best. He is short and stocky and gets over the ground with a stride that is deceiving, to say the least. McDonough's action is not unlike that of Le Roy Dorland, of the Pastime A. C., who holds the 300 yard indoor championship. Harry Correll is the best shot putter in the Twelfth Regiment. Standing "six feet three" in his stockings, and built somewhat on the lines of Dick Sheldon, the great Yale athlete, Correll promises to become a fine performer with the iron ball. Correll is also a slasher at pulling a rope and is a member ofthe regimental tug-of-war team that has won many a hard-earned tug.

Arother great shot putter and tug-of-war man is Frank Clark, one of the Tweifth's veteran athletes. Clark is far famed for his wit, and is continually "legging" somebody. One evening Clark was standing near the front door of the armory in company with a raw recruit, when a bearded young man appeared in the doorway and entered the building. "Hey, Jimmie," said Clark to the recruit, "see that skate with the whiskers?" "Sure!" answered the new one. "Well," continued Clark, "he's so down and out that he aln't got no place to sleep, and he don't know where his next meal's acomin' from." "Is that so?" said the surprised rookie, feeling in his pocket for a loose dime to slip to the unfortunate, "What's his name?" "That's Neil Vanderblit," answered Clark, and the drinks were on the recruit.

F. E. Sullivan, a stock mechanic, upset all calculations at the Twelfth's last games by winning the sprint, the shot-put and the quarter-mile dash with congumnate ease. By virtue of this showing Sullivan now holds the cup emblematic of the regimental all-around championship, but he must land it twice more to get permanent ownership. Sullivan's work will be watched closely on Monday night. Trainer Conners expects him te prove himself a dangerous all-around man by bringing down some Madden will start either satisfaces of king James in the Beaninks Handscap at six furnonss on opening day. Neither seems fit to set down. But he has a condidate which is attracting a lot of attention in the three-year-old Call boy, which is only asked to carry nine-ty-points, and with this light impost a majority of the clockers and regulars till have a bet down when the bugle cills the field to the post on Monday, and it won't be such a large field either, for it is estimated that not more than a dozen will face the barrier. Banyah is another three year old which will have a following, but the fact that he is asked to carry it pounds more than Call Boy has made some of his admirers weaken.

George Odom's Oraculum and Comediene will unquestionably be fit, for they have not had a let up in their training, having raced at New Orleans all winter. Berkeley and Howard Shean have shown enough in their last two work outs to warrant the prediction that the books will not take any long chances laying against them, while Graziahlo, which was favorite in the event last spring and was beaten a nose on the post by the three year old Malaga, is given an outside chance.
